Even more unworthy of Lord Ballsbuky's previous reputation was the insinuation that the shortcomings of the Government were to be attributed to the neglect of the English Syndicates to enter on the concessions granted. The Government ziet at Weihaiwei, some 700 Chinese having knows well that, at the time the concessions were granted, there was every intention to the Chinese Kegiment, newsver, surrounded the proceed at once with the works required it malcontents and, behaving admirably, succeeded knows also equally well that the reason light. why the concessions have not long ago veen taken up has proceeded from political, causes; and that the chief of these was an entire want of confidence, amply justified advantage of his skill not to put oil going to

has been the attempt to curry favour with I the Chinese government by a distinct warpling of fact. China was justified, the telegram tells us, in requiring some substantial progress and asking that a serious undertaking, such as that of the Poking Syndicate, should be pressed onward. Herein, we are willing to confess, really lies the point of the issue, but the delay and listlessness lies ) at the doors of the Government and not with the Syndicate. By a carious coincidence the very despatch which brought Mr. BRODRICK's speech also brought the news of the decision of the arbitrators in the case of the Delagoa Railway arbitration, whereby we learnt that after a delay of more than nine years this simple case, which a court of law would have decided in a sitting, remained sub judice over nine years. We may ] suggest that the ease should never have been permitted to go to arbitration at all, or if it had, that a reasonable limit of time should have been imposed on the arbitrators. In any case the result is not reassuring; the capitalists who, in spite of a concession, even, if possible, more binding than ) that of the Chinese Government to the Pekling Syndicate, had their property quietly confiscated, and thanks to the easy-going good nature of their Government had to remain there was absolutely no complaint of its having been obtained by unfair means, or having been obtained by unfair means, or under conditions contravening the ordinary Hanen but his househoot was from Peking vin practice of nations, was permitted to sluin a steam launch sent by Viceroy Chang whom
